

This is what's happening in Cohousing Now!

Let's tell the world about Cohousing!

I challenge each and every one of us to tell someone about our lives in cohousing. It has become increasingly apparent to many people just how important it is to have a sense of community. Those that experience that type of connection and collaboration often feel an increased happiness and overall less loneliness. There are many types of groupings with shared interests or commonalities, but choosing to live 'with' each other in cohousing is a relatively small percentage of the population. But don't you think, that if more people knew about cohousing, that more people would choose it?

Telling the world about cohousing could happen in a variety of opportunities

- post about a community experience on your social media
- explain it when you introduce yourself to a new group
- write an editorial/article for your local newspaper
- describe it when you're chatting with someone at the playground or dog park

Tell all your friends, your family, your acquaintances! Shout from the rooftops!
Let's all tell the world about Cohousing!

Introducing February's "Stepping Into Cohousing" online conference Keynote Speaker Diana Lind, the author of Brave New Home

This provocative look at how the American Dream of single-family homes, white picket fences, and two-car garages became a lonely, overpriced nightmare explores how new trends in housing can help us live better.

We started with the rich materials offered on the cohousing.org website. The archive of webchats there took us into discussion of cooperative culture, participation, high structure/low structure, personal growth, conflict – you get the idea. Seriously, these webchats are a treasure trove, and the opportunity to listen to a number of different people, from consultants to cohousing members, was transformative for us... Read More

Individual Partnership Program

We can make it easier for you to connect with others, while learning a lot about cohousing and how to do it well.

Community Launch Program

We have the knowledge, resources and contacts to give your community the boost you need as you are forming.

Community Partnership Program

We are offering a structure for all of us to evolve, improve and support each other as a community of communities.

As a Partner with CohoUS, you will be investing in the association and our mission for more and better cohousing, in exchange, we'll be doing all that we can for you!

Is the Boom in Communal Living Really the Good Life? by Sally Howard

Talk to Maria and feelings of isolation certainly aren't issue here. In fact, according to the 29-year-old, community members at Findhorn always pulled together to support each other, long before the pandemic.
